In the third the county-seat boys shoved over three more, when Holleron doubled to right cleaning the bases.

Harry Adamson, pitching for the Athletics, worked smoothly until the ninth, allowing only two hits up to that time. In this inning the Concordians connected for four hits, which with the aid of errors, counted for four runs. The last man up struck out.

C. OF C. SECOND ANNIVERSARY DINNER

President B. M. Little Made Report For The Year.

The second anniversary dinner of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce was held last night in the Sunday School room of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The menu committee of which John Chamberlain was chairman, had provided amply for the inner man and woman; the eats being served by The Victory. The music committee, Irwin Morris chairman, had a player piano from McCall's Music Store, and the Missouri Gas & Electric Service Co., donated the use of its radio set. So there was nothing lacking for entertainment. The decorations were in good taste and made a pleasing setting for the event. Mrs. Cannon was chairman of this committee. There were 119 present.

The event of the evening and the most vital to all interested in the work of the Chamber of Commerce, was the resume of the accomplishments of the Chamber for the past year. Mr. Little was listened to with rapt attention and every one present was forcibly impressed with the seriousness in which the Board of Directors and the Officers had entered into their work and what it had accomplished. Mr. Little spoke of the criticism that had been made in respect to the employment of a paid office force. In part, he said: "The paid secretary marked the difference between the success of the Chamber of Commerce and the failure of associations that had been born and flickered out in a few short months, because these associations had had no one to do the work." And he was absolutely right. A Chamber of Commerce is a clearing house for civic activities and no one is so foolish to think that it will survive and accomplish anything without direction and without constant surveillance on the part of a trained secretary. Those present surely must have endorsed Mr. Little's defense of the board in this particular.

The report of the treasurer, Wm. L. Groves, was read. This report showed a balance in the treasury of $18.17. The books had been audited by Jas. R. Moorehead, Jr., and Joe Mann, and found correct.

Roy S. Rauschklob from the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, was present and made a short talk along the line of co-operation between the various forces of a community.

The result of the recent election for members to the board was read, and the following were declared elected: E. J. McGrew, Edward Aull, Karl Winkler, John Chamberlain, and Sandford Sellers, Jr.

Improvements At Wentworth.

Following the policy at Wentworth to improve the buildings from year to year, the interior of West Barracks will be completely rebuilt this summer. Work has already begun. When it is finished it will be absolutely new and up-to-date, with the most comfortable living quarters on the campus. West Barracks, though built in 1907, has never been satisfactory. Its four sections with four separate stairways, have made it hard to get from part of the building to the other. When completed it will be convenient and modern in every particular.

The Fourth Floor in Main Barracks is also being rebuilt.
